IBD Precis testing, available exclusively from Prometheus®, is a serological aid in the diagnosis, classification and clinical assessment of inflammatory bowel disease (IBD). It uses proprietary biomarkers and an algorithm to distinguish patterns consistent or not consistent with IBD, differentiate Crohn's disease (CD) from ulcerative colitis (UC), and provides insights on colonic involvement and/or risk of complications.

Medical Necessity Certification Statement

I, the treating physician, have determined the above ordered test is medically necessary and appropriate to support the diagnosis, classification, risk assessment and/or management of inflammatory bowel disease. This determination is based on my observation and clinical judgment. The Prometheus IBD Precis test provides information that supports my ability to improve patient care, establish or clarify disease classification, assess disease risk, and guide disease management decisions.
